My AMDA experience

by Antonio " Tofi " Sison

M.D.

member, AMDA-Philippines

It was at the right scheme of things when I began the process of getting involved with AMDA. Perhaps it was the unique position of the stars in our galaxy which gave cosmic impetus for me to integrate into AMDA consciousness. After all, nothing in the universe happens by accident.

In my last year of residency in Psychiatry with researches to finish, conferences to attend, cases to present, patients to follow up, socials to go to, dog shows and seminars to plan, antiques to collect, why would I want to invest time and energy with AMDA ?

My present uncensored, gut level response would be... because I see the potential of the organization, starting from the noble premise of altruism through friendship and understanding and developing this concept into International conferences, health programs for the poor, exchange programs and friendships among countries.

My world view was expanding and I felt the AMDA direction was similar to the direction I wanted to go. It was my trust in this feeling, that I joined core group members, Kenneth Hartigan Go, Pancho Flores, Alvin Mojica to the 1988 AMDA conference in Bangkok, not really fully understanding the organizational structure, the short and long range goals and how I fit in.

Being together with other delegates from Japan, Malaysia, India, Philippines and Thailand as host, was an enlightening experience. I realized how similar cultural values and attitudes were in the Asian region, as well as, appreciate the unique differences in language, attitudes and cultural expectations. It was an opportunity to spread goodwill and friendship to our neighbors across the sea.

It was in understanding myself more that I was able to change stereotypes I had and to be able to communicate thoughts and feelings across some language limitations.

After a while, the spontaneous laughter, the hot & spicy Thai food, the catchy Thai music, the glorious sights and sounds of Bangkok, the warm Thai hospitality made everyone comfortable and happy ready to tackle the agenda of the convention with the panoramic view of Pattaya around us.

Personally, I was impressed by the booming Thai economy as evidenced by the construction boom the influx of investors and tourists. Part of the reason I feel is the very strong sense of nationalism among the Thai people who came from different ethnic backgrounds. All of the Thai citizens think, feel and speak Thai. And it is because of this strong sense of Thai identity, supported by the unique government system, the Royal Thai Family, the Buddhist religion, the stable political climate which precipitated the emergence of economic progress.

At the same time I ponder on what I could do in my capacity to help my country rise to its economic, artistic and spiritual potential. The Bangkok experience showed me that I have to develop a more solid sense of being Filipino to be able to be effective.

The Asian mind works with the Asian subtle sense of propriety, respect and etiquette. I realized that the strategic way of expressing is as important as the message you would like to impart. There is a time for laughter, talk and silence.

Back in Manila, I had to integrate back into my residency and while writing this, a thought entered my mind. I was right about AMDA, wasn't I? Hope to see you in Kobe, Japan next year!
